

Michael Isaacman is currently the Chief Commercial Officer at Shift4 (NYSE:FOUR), an international publicly traded fin-tech firm, responsible for their global revenue strategy, marketing as well as building upon critical customer and partner relationships.

He brings over two decades of leadership in growing revenue, defining business development strategies, cultivating organizations and capturing new business across multiple B2B industries. Prior to joining Shift4, Michael served as Director of Strategic Growth for Draken International, a global provider of tactical flight support. With a fleet of over 100 fighter aircraft, the company operated the largest privately-owned fleet of ex-military aircraft in the world. The company uses these aircraft to support various types of military training objectives for the US and its allies. Michael was personally responsible for building out Red Air and JTAC solutions for the US Navy, US Marines, National Guard, Dutch Fighter Weapons School, the Royal Airforce, as well as several key defense industry alliances and joint ventures.

Michael also brings over 20 years within the Information Technology Services industry, successfully driving commercial growth, building business development organizations and implementing creative business solutions for Fortune 500 companies and government organizations.
